Maha shows the way to easier farm loans

Under the scheme, warehouse receipts are given against farmers' produce and banks give concessional mortgage loans at concessional interest rates (8-10% which are subside by the Centre, officials said. At warehouses, the MSWC also have insurance cover against fire, theft, storm, tempest and flood. Depositors can avail credit from banks by pledging the warehouse receipts issued by the Corporation. The issue with us is when we harvest the produce, a market glut is created, leading to fall in prices. As we need financing during that time, we are forced to go for distress rates. We require money twice a year (once during Diwali and another time in March-April when the harvesting season starts), says 30-year old Sudhir Thakre from Yavatmal, Maharashtra. Thakre sold 130 quintals of chana at 14,100 per quintal recently after keeping his produce at a warehouse in April.

"Prices were barely 7,200 per quintal in Tosa while when I heard about it, the price from my friends had already gone up to 7,700. I recall his ordeal of three years back when he was forced to approach a private money lender for funds and ended up paying 90,000 per quintal as interest on a loan of 2 lakh. This time, he held on to his produce for three months and has made a good profit. "Though concept wise this is good, any government has to take a cautious approach since more than required storage can lead to artificial shortage of a commodity in the market. But warehouse receipts can definitely work in favour of farmers during harvesting period when market prices normally are low," says Vijay Sarana, a food policy expert.

Last year, Madhav Nimkar, a farmer who cultivates soybean, cotton and oranges in Vidarbha region of Maharashtra, had to sell his soybean at barely 1,100 per quintal when the prevailing market prices were 2,500 per quintal. Nimkar had stocked his soybean at home and the produce was damaged in the rain.

"I sold 40 quintals of soybean as a loss. I had no option because there was no godown house in our region that could take excess surplus. But after a new warehousing facility came up in Tosa, I sold my 100 quintals of chana and 100 quintals of mango and managed to get a loan of 1.5 lakh against the warehouse receipts. I did not have to add any product at a godown," says Nimkar, adding, "This gives freedom from moneylenders who charge anywhere between 10-15% interest on a monthly basis."

Farmers like Abhit Bete of Vidarbha district want that public sector banks should be as encouraging towards farmers as private banks, which process loans against warehouse receipts in barely 20 minutes. Unlaid says if more farmers avail of this scheme, many of them could be out of moneylenders' clutches, which will bring down farmer suicides.

Between 2013 and 2015 a total of 11,441 farmers have allegedly committed suicides in Maharashtra also, which puts the country in line with suicides. Maharashtra has recorded 696 farmer suicides in the first three months of 2015 between January and March, as per official data. However, some industry experts point out that most farmers who commit suicides have marginal land holdings and are often already burdened with debt. Their produce is not large enough to be kept in warehouses and they are on a fixed cash flow. "The reason why they end up selling in distress and also go back to moneylenders since it seems simpler."

Tesla to remain public company: Musk

He attributed his decision to abandon the bid to feedback he received from shareholders and on the effort proving to be more time-consuming and distracting than he anticipated. The move also allows Musk and Tesla having to avoid a series of investor lawsuits and US Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into the factual accuracy of Musk's tweet that funding for the deal was "secured." Although the majority of shareholders spoke to said they would remain with Tesla if we went private, the sentiment, in a nutshell, was "please, please, please," Musk wrote in a blog post on Friday. The Maratha war in regional TV Currently segmentation exists in the form of GECL, news, music and movie genres across state regional markets, while in niche regions, there are regional feeds. Regional TV is playing a key role and media and entertainment, KPMM India, says, "My sense is broadcasters will not drive further into micro-segmental channels. For TV, which, they could adopt the digital route."
